

To whom it may concern,

I am writing to you today in support of Wil Floyd. I met Wil ten years ago and have had the privilege of working with him at Pilgrim Firs Camp and Conference Center in 2011 as camp staff.

I have known him to be very loyal, dedicated and a hard worker. He is committed to fairness and has always been respectful of others. Through the years, he has been a loyal friend and is always one to help those in need whenever you call on him. He cares about his family and his community. I am glad to know him and count him as one of my friends.

I know that he is looking forward to the resolution of his case as the cost of travel between Washington and his home in Wisconsin has been a hardship on him and has made it difficult to build his life and develop his bonds to community.

Thank you for your consideration,

Leah Peterson
